Cellist Joel Krosnick, Pianist Gilbert Kalish Will Perform Five-Concert Series, "The Cello"

On five Wednesdays in 1984, cellist Joel Krosnick will present a five-concert series in the Coolidge Auditorium entitled "The Cello: A Twentieth-Century American Retrospective." The concerts, each beginning at 8 p.m., will be held on January 11, March 14, May 16, October 10, and November 7. Pianist Gilbert Kalish will perform with Mr. Krosnick in all the concerts. Violinist Robert Mann, violist Samuel Rhodes, pianist Elizabeth Wright, percussionist Gordon Gottlieb, and the Juilliard Contemporary Ensemble will appear as guest artists on separate occasions.

Joel Krosnick, who is cellist with the Juilliard String Quartet, the quartet-in-residence at the Library of Congress, became deeply interested in the cello repertoire of this century while at Columbia University, where he studied with such composers as Mario Davidovsky, Otto Luening, and Charles Wuorinen. Reflecting his ever growing commitment to the art of his time, Mr. Krosnick will perform a new work for the cello on each of the programs. The commissioned composers are Robert Mann, Larry Bell, Paul Martin Zonn, Tod Machover, and Susan Blaustein. A number of the other works to be performed, many of which have not been published or recorded, will be included in a new publication derived from this series and edited by Mr. Krosnick and Mr. Kalish (Columbia University Press).

For the first concert, on January 11, Mr. Krosnick and guest artist Gordon Gottlieb will perform Henry Cowell's Four Declamations with Return (1949) and the Sonata (1915), Six Pieces for Cello (1964) by Roger Sessions, a new work by Robert Mann entitled Songs from Far Places, Donald Martino's Parisonatina Al'dodecafonia (1964), and Evocations (1979) by Ralph Shapey.

That evening at 6:30, Mr. Martino, Mr. Krosnick, and Mr.

Joy F. Lower Retires
Police Officer at NLS since 1968

On November 22, the staff of the National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped (NLS) honored special police officer Joy F. Lower on his retirement from the Library. Officer Lower joined the Library's Special Police Force in October 1962. With the exception of a two-year period, Officer Lower has been stationed at the Taylor St. Annex since June 1968.

Frank Kurt Cylke, NLS director, presented Officer Lower with a citation "in grateful appreciation for valuable services rendered in support of the national free library program for blind and physically handicapped readers." The staff presented Officer Lower with special tokens of appreciation for his support and assistance to the entire staff over the years. During a reception on the occasion, photographs were taken to be bound into a handsome keepsake album.

Officer Lower and his wife, Ruth, will continue to be busy with their church activities and plan to travel.

Paul Vidal Retires

Paul Vidal retired in August after serving as a translator in the Language Services Section of the Congressional Research Service for 18 years. During his tenure, he translated a variety of requests from languages that included German, French, Latin, Polish, Italian, and Spanish.

Mr. Vidal was born in Germany and left that country during World War II and served in the Polish underground until the end of the war. He emigrated to the United States in 1949 and served with the U.S. Army during the Korean War (40th U.S. Infantry Battalion) and also in Panama. In 1959–65, he returned to Germany, where he obtained a master's degree cum laude from Bonn University.

Upon his retirement, friends and colleagues honored him with a reception noting his 25 years of Federal service. He and his family have moved to Canada, where he is at present teaching part-time at Ottawa University.

Donald C. Holmes Dies
Chief of Photoduplication Service For More than 22 Years

Donald C. Holmes, chief of the Photoduplication Service from November 1945 to January 1968, died at his home in Marathon, Fla., on November 30. All of Mr. Holmes' Federal service was with the Library's Photoduplication Service, with the exception of three years at the National Archives and Records Service and three years with the U.S. Navy during World War II.

Mr. Holmes was the first employee appointed to the Photoduplication Service when it was established in 1938. In an effort to make the Library's extensive resources available to scholars and other researchers, Mr. Holmes devoted his energy to the development of one of the world's leading photoreproduction installations exclusively devoted to the photocopying of library materials. His interests and abilities extended not only to the development of specialized equipment and the modification of general-use equipment to special library

Mr. Holmes was a pioneer in the successful application of photographic processes, particularly microphotography and xerography, as these technologies relate to the reproduction of library materials.

Mr. Holmes was a leading figure in the development of domestic and international standards for photographic processes related to documentary reproduction. He was member of the American Library Association and the National Micrographics Association (now the Association for Information and Image Management). During the last 14 years of his tenure at the Library, Mr. Holmes served as the chair of the U.S. American Standards Institute's Sectional Committee on Photographic Reproduction of Documents (PH5). Beginning in 1955, Mr. Holmes attended all International Organization for Standardization meetings of Technical Committees 36 (Cinematography), 42 (Photography), and 46, Subcommittee 1 (Documentary Reproduction).

G&M Displays Map Christmas Cards

Is that really Santa Claus racing through Dayton, Ohio, ahead of his sleigh in a sleek, green convertible? That illustration on a Christmas card is one of some 80 greeting cards on display in the foyer of the Geography and Map Division (LM B01) through January.

The division annually displays a selection of cards from its Ristow Collection of more than 500 Christmas cards. The collection is named after Walter Ristow, the former division chief, who has received them over the years. Dr. Ristow, who now serves the Library as honorary consultant in U.S. cartographic history, has given the collection to the division, and other staff members in the division have also contributed to the collection.

Several 17th-century reproductions of early maps and a Christmas map of Manhattan dated 1949 are also among the items displayed. Other greetings are from such places as Australia, Bethlehem, Brazil, Canada, Chile and Colombia. Of particular note are the map of Christmas Island and a brochure on the city of North Pole, Alaska.

Staff Activities

Ranjan Borra of the Southern Asia Section, Asian Division, is the winner of three first-place gold medals for the 100-yard freestyle, 100-yard backstroke, and 50-yard backstroke events at the D.C. Masters Fall Classic Swim Meet on November 4. He was also a first-place gold medal winner in the 200-yard backstroke event at the University of Delaware Annual Swim Meet on November 20.

"Thirty Years of Academic and Cultural Exchanges between the United States and Finland."

Among the guests welcomed by Warren Tsuneishi, the Library's director for area studies, were His Excellency Richard Müller, Ambassador of Finland, and Mrs. Müller and Ronald L. Trowbridge, associate director of the U.S. Information Agency Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. The impressive academic and cultural delegation from Finland, led by Ernst Palmén, chancellor of Helsinki University, and Kaarlo Hartiala, chancellor of Turku University, represented recipients—both scholars and research institutions—of American study grants. In his opening remarks to a capacity audience, Dr. Tsuneishi emphasized the importance of international cultural cooperation not only in research and education but also in the exchange of publications and other library materials.

The program began with a panel moderated by Clara Lovett, chief of the European Division, on the theme, "Thirty Years of Academic and Cultural Exchanges between the United States and Finland." Erik Allardt, professor of sociology at Helsinki University, discussed the form and extent of the American influence upon the Finnish mind as expressed in the language of the media and in scientific research. Representing the committee of Finnish-American Academic and Scientific Interaction, Allan Kuusisto, dean of Westminister College of Salt Lake City, spoke on behalf of Americans of Finnish descent and other Americans who are beneficiaries of these scholarly and educational exchange programs.

Elemer Bako, Finno-Ugrian area specialist in the Library's European Division, outlined the history of the Library's contacts with Finland, which reach back more than a century. The collection has grown considerably from the modest "Smithsonian deposits" to the network of exchange contracts dealing with government publications to the present exchange agreement with the Helsinki University Library. The activities at the Library of Congress of two resourceful consultants, Karl-Erik Olsoni and Kirsti Jaantila, in the early 1950s, resulted in substantial contributions to and proposals for the systematic development of the Library's operations in the Finnish area. After the closing of the Shared Cataloging Center in Olso in 1981, selection of Finnish materials became primarily the duty of the Library's recommending officers active in the Finnish area. The Library's present Finnish holdings consist of 60,000 to 80,000 monographs and 2,000 periodical titles and are increasing annually by 1,600 to 2,000 works, not including maps, musical works, prints, motion pictures, and photographs. Several special sources have contributed to the enrichment of the Library's Finnish collections, including the Finlandia Foundation Gift Fund, established by the late president of Finlandia Foundation, Inc., Väinö A. Hoover, for the acquisiton of rare Finnish publications, and gifts of books, motion pictures, and photographs presented by the Embassy of Finland.

In a separate part of the program, the Honorable Seppo Lindblom, Finland's minister of trade and industry, addressed the subject, "Finland: A Dynamic Industrial State between East and West." At the conclusion of the program, Chancellor Hartiala presented to the Library a beautifully illustrated commemorative volume entitled Finnish-American Academic and Professional Exchanges: Analyses and Reminiscences, published for this occasion by the Foundation for Research in Higher Education and Science Policy and the U.S. Educational Foundation in Finland, both in Helsinki.

New Reference Works

One of the most helpful guides to American students of Russian and Soviet affairs has been Steven A. Grant's Scholar's Guide to Washington, D.C. for Russian/Soviet Studies, which appeared in 1977 (Washington, Smithsonian Institution Press, 1977. xii, 403 p. Z2491.G67). This work describes the Washington, D.C., Metropolitan area libraries, museums, and archives, as well as collections of maps, films, photographs, and recorded sound. It includes public and private organizations that provide information about Russia and the Soviet Union.

A second edition of this work has now appeared, under the title Scholars' Guide to Washington, D.C. for Russian/Soviet Studies: The Baltic States, Byelorussia, Central Asia, Moldavia, Russia, Transcaucasia, The Ukraine (Washington, Smithsonian Institution Press, 1983. 416 p. Z2491.G67 1983). Descriptions of the various information sources have been brought up to date, with references to bibliographies and guides that have appeared since the first edition, and there is a section offering guidance to scholars who may wish to visit Washington for research projects.

As the user of this guide can quickly see, the extent of the information available in the Washington area about the territory and people of the Russian Empire and the Soviet Union is indeed broad, comprising materials both from those lands and about them. No one engaged in any form of research involving that region can fail to find a great deal of relevance, nor can it be overlooked that, for most questions, access to sources in Washington is more convenient and more comprehensively organized that in other world centers.

Copies of this edition are being processed for addition to the Library's collections. [Robert V. Allen]

Toshokan jōhōgaku kenkyū bunken yōran, 1970–1981 (Bibliography of library and information science, 1970–1981), compiled by Hitoshi Fukui and Satoko Meguro and supervised by the Japan Society of Library Science (Tokyo, Nichigai Asoshietsu, 1983. 563 p.), is the first comprehensive bibliography of its kind to be published in the last decade. It complements a number of earlier works of a similar nature, the most recent being Toshokangaku bunken mokuroku [Bibliography of library science], published in 1971 by the Association of Private Universities in Japan.

This new bibliography brings together references to all secondary source materials relating to libraries and librarianship published in Japan during the years 1970–81. It contains some 14,500 bibliographic citations of monographs, bibliographies, and articles from some 200 periodicals, covering topics that range from children's book services in a remote mountain village in Japan to the activities of the Library of Congress.

Entries are arranged according to the libraries and library science section of the Nippon Decimal Classification (seventh edition, 1961) and are organized under 11 subject headings: libraries in general, library administration, library buildings and equipment, library management, technical processing, documentation, library services and activities, general libraries, school libraries, special libraries, and the reading of books.

Appendixes, all arranged in Japanese syllabary order, include a term index, a corporate and personal name index, an author index, and a list of periodical titles from which articles are procured.

This useful reference work has recently been acquired by the Library and is now being processed as an addition to the reference collection of the Japanese Section of the Asian Division. [Hisao Matsumoto]
